Cooperative Graduate School System

The Cooperative Graduate School System is a system to pursue collaboration based on agreements with research institutes and other organizations. In addition to allowing the graduate schools to welcome researchers from these research institutes as visiting professors and visiting associate professors (hereafter, “visiting faculty members”), the system allows students to receive research guidance on their master’s and doctoral theses from these visiting faculty members at research institutes equipped with cutting-edge facilities and functions. It not only aims to expand the research fields of the graduate schools but also to establish new areas for learning, increasing the diversity of the education provided by the graduate schools.

●Faculty Members

The university appoints as visiting faculty members researchers from research institutes in fields related to those fields in which the graduate schools need to expand their research and education. These visiting faculty members provide research guidance and other support to students as part of students’ graduate school education at their research institute or organization (or at the university, where necessary).

●Associate research supervisors

The visiting faculty members provide additional research guidance and other support to the student, as a supplement to the support that the student receives from their main research supervisor at the university (a full-time faculty member of the university).

●Students

Students are enrolled in a graduate school of this university and, as a rule, the credits required to complete their courses are acquired at this university. They also receive research guidance and other support from visiting faculty members at research institutes and other organizations (or at the university, where necessary) and receive a degree from this university.

Students are not required to pay academic or other fees to a research institute or other organization.

Precautions when implementing screening

(1) Precautions related to infectious diseases for which suspension of attendance is specified in School Health and Safety Act

On the day of the entrance examination, those who have contracted an infectious disease for which suspension of attendance is specified in the School Health and Safety Act (novel coronavirus, influenza, measles, chickenpox, etc.) and who have not recovered are requested, in principle, to refrain from taking the examination as there is a risk of the disease spreading to other examinees, supervisors, etc.

However, this does not apply to cases where acknowledged by a school physician or other physician that there is no risk of infection based on the condition of the disease.

Even in cases where examinees are requested to refrain from taking the examination due to the above reason, the examination fee will not be refunded. Please take sufficient precautions in managing your health on the day of the exam.

(2) In the event that TUS determines that it is difficult to hold an entrance examination as scheduled due to a natural disaster or unforeseen accident such as a fire, power outage, or major delay in transportation facilities, measures such as delaying the exam start time, postponing the exam, or changing the exam venue may be taken. Information related to implementation of the entrance examination from TUS will be provided on the Tokyo University of Science homepage (<https://www.tus.ac.jp/>). TUS will not bear any responsibility for any disadvantages to examinees resulting from the above.

Announcement of successful applicants

The official announcement of successful applications will be posted on the noticeboard on Thursday, March 7, 2024. Notifications of acceptance (along with a bank transfer slip for enrollment procedure fee) will be posted to successful applicants at the address they provided in their application.
